They Request That No Banquet Be Prepared for Them in Omaha. Mayor Broatch received a telegram yes terday from Special Agent W. E. Curtis, of the state department, who has the Pan-American excursion party in charge. The telegram was dated Cleveland, and requested that no banquet be arranged in Omaha on Saturday night for the congress. He requests that the party be allowed to rest qui-etly at the hotel or attend the theatres, and

"I make this request by the unanimous wish of our people, who are completely exhausted by hospitality."

In reply to this telegram the mayor sent Mr. Curtis a letter, assuring him that Omaha would give the excursionists as hearty a welcome and good entertainment as any city in the country. He will ask the merchants and business men generally to decorate their buildings and show these distinguished means that Omaha is not less enterguished guests that Omaha is not less enter-prising than her eastern rivals. A committee will meet them at Sioux City and escort the party to Omaha over the Chicago, St. Paul Minneapolis & Omaha road, arriving at 2:30 p. m. They will be met at the depot by the mayor and a large delegation of citizens, and given a formal welcome to the city, and go thence by special train to the stock yards and packing houses. Upon their return carriages will be taken at the Union Pacific depot for a drive, at the conclusion of which the delegates will be quartered at the Paxton, where rooms have been engaged for them. In the evening they can go to see "The Stoaway" at Boyd's and Margaret Mather at the Grand.

At 10 o'clock Sunday the visitors will go to Fort Omaha, where at 11 o'clock they will witness a parade by the regulars, under special dispensation granted by the president. From the fort witness will be taken dent. From the fort carriages will be taken for the mansion of Nelson Patrick, where the visitors will be royally entertained. Sunday afternoon the guests will inspect the smelt-ing works, and at night will board their own train and be whirled away to Des Moines.

AUNTY INDIGNANT.

An Old Colored Lady Fighting in the Courts For a Home. Judge Wakeley made an order in district court yesterday restraining D. F. Mount and Paul Platz from moving a house, occupled by Charity Smith, from its location on the site of the alley between Douglas and Farnam and Twentieth and Twenty-first streets. This proceeding is the result of the action of D. T. Mount's agent on Tuesday in removing Mrs. Smith's house from the property. The property belonged to the estate of the late Senator Hitchcock and was sold by his heirs to D. T. Mount. Mrs. Smith, who is an old colored woman, claims to have a verbal life lease on the property from Senator Hitchcock, and has had possession of it for the past twenty-two years. On Tuesday, at Mr. Mount's order, in Mrs. Smith's absence, the house was removed from its location. Wednesday night Mrs. Smith had another frame cottage put up on the property, and yesterday morning at daylight took possession of the premises, and had a rousing fire burning in an old soap kettle in one corner of the shanty. She then filed a petition for an injunction restraining Mount and his men from removing the new structure or interfer-ing with her in returning the old house to its place. The petitioner also asked for damages in the sum of $2,500. Judge Wakeley granted the restraining order and set the bearing of the case for Oc-

PROPOSES TO STAY.

Mr. Clarkson Will Give the Partisan Nomince his Hands Full.

The friends of H. J. Davis are very jubilant because of his appointment by Governor Thayer as Groff's successor on the beach. They claim that this insure the election of Davis. The friends of Clarkson do not so regard it. On the contrary, they claim the governor's action will only intensify the fight. A number of strong men who, up to the present time have not taken an active part, say they are now ready to go to work for

To the queries of a Ben reporter who met Mr. Clarkson, he replied:
"My friends urged me much against my own wishes to be a candidate, I was endorsed by the bar, am in the fight, and propose to stay until it is settled at the polls. One thing I wish to correct, and that is this: the friends of Davis have been circulating a report that previous to the bar meeting I promised him my support and influence, which is not so. They came to me long before I thought of being a candidate and I told them if Howard Smith was out of the race Davis mould be more to the case Davis. would be my next choice. Later on Davis' friends urged the necessity of a bar meeting, circulated a petition to have one called, and went into it pledging themselves to stand by the result. Simeral, Gurley and Wakeley came to me with the petition, but at that time my friends had in-

"Since Davis' nomination by the republican convention," said a prominent member of the bar, "the stock argument of those who support him is that Clarkson broke faith with them, when on the other hand they threatened a game of bulldozing by declaring that all opposition in the bar meeting would combine and elect Lee Estelle. Furthermore," he continued, "in accepting the republican nomination. Davis acknowledged that he was doing a dishenerable act, but, under the whip of Charley Green and Paul Vandervoort, who made him believe that if he refused it his goose would be cooked for all time, he preferred to risk his honor rather than lose the chance of getting to the supreme bench, which is his chief am-

"The fact is not forgotten," declared a legal light in New York life building, "that Governor Thayer some time ago declined to appoint for the reason that the election is too near at hand, but since he has every lawyer declares that he had lawyer declares that he had as much if not more right to appoint Clark-son, as the choice of the bar as he did. Davis also owes his nomination to a small portion of one of the two parties."

Another lawyer, who is comparatively a new member of this bar, and against whom the cry of click rule can not be raised, says that under the circumstances he feels himself bound to support and vote for Mr. Clarkson. "I am glad," he continued, "that Davis has been appointed to fill Groff's vacancy, be-cause the work on hand demands it, and I am an admirer of his, but he cer-tainly went into the bar meeting along with the restof us and there pledged himself to support its nominee. Every lawyer who was there must either stand by Clarkson or forfeit his honor." This is the view entertained by half a dozen leading citizens talked with yesterday.
